

A top-down view of approximately 15-20 hands of various skin tones reaching from the edges of the frame towards the center. The hands are interlaced in a circular pattern, with fingers and thumbs gripping each other. The background is a bright blue sky with soft, white clouds. The text "Nonverbal Communication" is centered over the hands.

A close-up, side-profile view of a person's head and ear. Several thin, colored wires (yellow, white, and red) are attached to the back of the head, likely for an EEG or similar neuro-monitoring device. The person is wearing glasses and looking towards a computer monitor in the background. The monitor displays a blue screen with some faint, illegible text or graphics. The overall scene suggests a laboratory or research environment focused on neuro-linguistics.
